SHARPERS GET LEFT.—One of the circus gang tried to work a "flimflam" game on Schloeman, the city baker, says the Roseburg Review. A couple of them came in during the evening and one of them bought ten cents' worth of tobacco, tendering a ten dollar gold piece in payment. Mr. Schloeman gave him back his change $5 in gold and $4.90 in silver. Then the fellow's pal remarked that the silver was a nuisance to carry and together they handed back $5 in silver to be changed for $5 in gold. All this time they were talking to confuse the baker, and as he was about to hand back the $5 in gold they requested him not to forget to give back that $10 gold piece. Mr. Schloeman did not know just "where he was at," but realized that a game was being worked on him, and requested a gentleman who had just stepped in to go for a marshal. This alarmed the circusmen and they went out of the shop and around the corner at 2:40 p.m. leaving Mr. Schloeman in possession of $5 of their money. They never came back and he is that much ahead.

He was trying to take it out from under his bunk when it exploded with a deafening noise, blowing his arms and head off and scattering parts of the body into the tree tops. The coroner went down this afternoon. On account of the mangled condition of the remains it is doubtful if they can be sent to Albany for burial. The affair has cast a deep gloom over the mining camp."

CHINESE PRAGRANCE.

The Authorities Gently Reminded of Filthy Chinatown.

A sure way to spoil an appetite for several meals ahead is a trip through the alley in the rear of the China dens on Liberty street.

The foul smell arising from the carcasses dumped into this alley, is only equalled by the stench that emanates from the back doors of the row of dens that front on Liberty and State streets. If it is true that this race of people live on dead cats, rats, etc., the den must now have on hand a surplus stock in that line. In this alley, near the tower of the fire bell, which they are now using as a dumping ground for their surplus edibles, lie a number of putrid carcasses that give rise to an odor that would do credit to a soap factory.

The writer observed in this alley, through the sense of sight, emphasized by that of smell in two dead cats, one that has lain for many days and another that is swollen to immense proportions, just nearing the ripening stage, and if not removed will thicken the atmosphere around with its odor in a day or two.

In this same locality lies a decomposing rat that contributes its share to excite the olfactory nerves, and to this is added the fragrance of a dead chicken and odor arising from bones of meat that are dumped into the alley with more or less flesh on them. The idea one gets of Chinese life at their back door is anything but exalted and the closer one gets to their dens the more nauseating the smell.

There is one place on Liberty street where they never take the trouble to carry the slop pails to the back door but empty it out at a side window where stands a pool of their filth which is very unsightly as well as deleterious to the sanitary condition of the surroundings.

The white residents in the neighborhood of Chinatown are beginning to complain, and they as well as the entire population of the city should be protected against the filthy habits of these uncleanly people.

That part of the city known as Chinatown, centrally located in the Capital City, is a fruitful source of disease and moral degradation and is becoming a menace to those owning property or doing business in that vicinity. Within easy stone throw are three Chinese or Japanese houses of prostitution besides one conducted by American demi monde.

Chinatown should be renovated, forcing the denizens to conform to sanitary laws as well as moral laws or that hole should be depopulated.

ROW AT CORVALLIS.

Two Families Go in for Blood and Make Business for the Physicians.

A general fight, which terminated in the shooting of M. W. Smith, took place on the island, three miles south of Corvallis Wednesday evening. The others implicated in the affair are John Stahlbuch, Sr., Hermann Stahlbuch, John Stahlbuch, Jr., Germans, and Mrs. Smith, wife of the man who was shot. The two families have been anything but friendly toward each other. A feud of longstanding has existed. Smith was in the act of driving a couple of cows belonging to the Stahlbuchs from his pasture, when he was met by the elder of the Germans and a fight took place in a road on Smith's land. The two sons of Stahlbuch bearing their father's cries were soon at the scene, Hermann with a shot gun, (this being disputed.) It is said that Smith took hold of the gun near the muzzle, and pushed it aside just as it was discharged, the load barely missing him. In a scuffle which ensued the gun became unbritched, Smith having the barrels in his hands with which he struck the two Stahlbuchs on their heads, knocking them down.

By this time the other Stahlbuch arrived and was also struck on the head with some instrument, and in a heated condition drew his pistol and began shooting at Smith, three of the shots taking effect. Parties who were in hearing distance say that six shots were fired in all. He was also considerably beaten about the back. As to the result of Smith's injuries the doctors are as yet unable to form an opinion, as none of the bullets have been located. The three Stahlbuchs are terribly out about the head, the older one and Herman being unable to be about, while John, the one who did the shooting, was in town next morning for medical assistance for his father and brother. He also exhibited an ugly wound. No one witnessed the fight only those implicated. A warrant was sworn out against Herman and John Stahlbuch, each, and they were arrested on a charge of an assault with a dangerous weapon. As the former was not able to come to town and there was no one else to take care of his disabled father, he was allowed to remain home. John was arraigned before County Judge Hufford and bound over in the sum of $300 to appear for preliminary trial set for Saturday at 1 o'clock. The bend was given—Corvallis News.

Comfort For the Unsuccessful.
If we are money makers, it is to the exclusion of something else; if we have gentleness and refinement, those qualities unfit us for becoming money makers. The late Daniel Dougherty met at Narragansett Pier a very charming young man one evening, and afterward asked me if he was poor or if he had inherited a fortune. "Why do you not ask me if he has made one?" I rejoined. "Because I know he hasn't," replied Mr. Dougherty, who, as every one knows, was a very keen observer of human nature. "He is poor, or if he is not, his money was inherited," insisted Mr. Dougherty, and when I pressed him for a reason for his assertion he said, "He is too refined, too cultured, too altogether charming ever to have made by his own exertions a fortune or even a competency beyond a mere living," which was a perfect diagnosis of the young man's position in life.—Boston Home Journal.
